 - Assistive Technology (Accommodations) box must be completed
 - Reminder to complete disability determination pages for any disabilities checked under Multiple Disability eligibility
- ISBE Updates
 - PSAT 8/9 for students with IEP who are 15-years-old
 - “ISBE had hoped to produce updated guidance about 105 ILCS 5/14-6.01 for the spring 2019 testing season, this issue is deeply connected with other areas, including Evidence-based Funding, special education, and more. As such, it requires careful deliberation and research on intended and unintended outcomes. Previous ISBE guidance that students be enrolled in a high school district as grade 9 students, which was last confirmed in 2014-15 is still in effect. Detailed guidance to assist with spring 2019 is posted now”

 - School mental health census time! – get your team on and rate your school
 - Trauma Responsiveness Implementation Tool can really help guide your school's next steps to improve your current supports/procedures
 - Other free rating scales

- Assist in determining objectives
 - Some may allow pre/post or progress use
 - Screening
 - Cover specific areas you may not need a diagnostic scale for
- SEL Goal Writing
 - A shortened version of the Goal Setting presentation was reviewed
 - Audience, Behavior, Condition, and Degree sheet completed with examples provided
 - Direct Behavior Rating is useful as a progress monitoring tool
 - Example objective writing with the R-CADS a free anxiety scale, reducing feelings of worry as measured by the scale (bi-weekly self-rating) could be a goal
 - Your objectives could be CBT style about listing 3 ways negative thoughts can impact behavior and mood.
 - Objective on relaxation techniques to reduce physical symptoms associated with anxiety
 - Could connect to Goal-Plan-Do-Review, to ensure problem analysis is accurate. Should reduce inaccurate negative self-ratings which are often related to worry. More importantly it compares a self-rating to another observer's rating
 - Any topics from your schools/districts?
 - What would you like to see next year? Different format? Combined sessions? More meetings? More digital communications, monthly contact?

SEL Goal Writing Case Example Notes

- Tell – explicitly state what you are working on
- Show – You model the activity (pictures, video, discuss, etc.)
- Do – Student tries after you model
- Practice – More Do trials with feedback
- Generalize – Move from structured setting to natural setting
 - Counseling role-play with you, role-play with peer, role-play outside of counseling, specific natural setting

CASEL Core Competencies

- Accurately identifying emotions and their cues
- Being respectful towards others
- Overreacting to little changes (not analyzing situations)
- No self-motivation to do anything at school
- Knowing how to ask someone to play (social engagement)

Tommy case example

- Tommy (2nd) has previous abuse history
- Low academics and language delays
- Tommy gets upset over little things, like not being first in line or missing a turn.
- He cusses and can become physically aggressive, hitting others.
- Parent noted he can't ever explain what is wrong or how he is feeling.
- Assume the behavioral piece is handled separately with a BIP to deal with physical and verbal aggression.
- Tommy will get academic and language support.
- What could we start with for an SEL goal?
 - We can't work on Tommy overreacting to little things without him having adequate vocabulary for those reactions or emotions.
 - We need to start by establishing his emotional vocabulary
 - What would be a good activity to build his emotional vocabulary for a 2nd grader with some language delays?

- Pair photo visuals, work on identifying facial expressions from photos
 - How else could you model?
 - For students with ASD, we may need to be very specific to list areas of the face to check as an objective
 - How else could you practice?
 - How could we generalize? (this is where your next objectives come from)
 - Identifying facial expressions of other students or adults in a role-play situation
- What would be the next step if we establish adequate emotional vocabulary?
 - Teaching the signs of being upset.
 - How could you model?
 - Objective could be for him to identify XX body signs of being angry or frustrated.
 - Having Tommy identify his emotions in comparison to another rater.
 - Use of a feelings thermometer, intensity rating, etc. be within XX points of adult
 - How could you practice/generalize?
 - Role plays in counseling, with peers, outside of counseling, implement rating with classroom teacher
- We know Tommy has adequate emotional vocabulary and can identify accurately the signs of when he is upset, now what?
 - Tommy like any student is ALLOWED to get upset! He just needs his response to match the situation or some good strategies to keep cool.
 - Lots of factors can make this a very difficult situation! (ACES, disability, natural reinforcers)
 - Directly identifying relaxation techniques: deer breathing, break area use, PMR << how could you write an objective?
 - How could you practice/generalize? (more objectives)
 - For each technique you will tell, show, do, then extend to role-plays with scenarios common to the student
 - You could make use of social stories for teaching too
 - To generalize in the classroom you would need to rely on self or teacher report for use
 - For very explicit use, you could develop a Goal-Plan-Do-Review Sheet for specific problem situations (e.g. not first in line)
